

Elvis Dumbledoor and the missing musical notes

One day there lived a man called Elvis Dumbledoor. Elvis Dumbledoor worked in a circus in London. He was a magical singer and played the dumdidereedoo that made mini clouds when you blow in it. Musical notes would come out of the dumdidereedoo and if they hit people then the clouds would rain on them.

One afternoon Elvis Dumbledoor lost his musical notes so he set off to find them. He knew who stole all of his musical notes...THE GANGSTERS!!!! So he set off with dynamite, a lasso, his ultimate nurf gun and a cunning plan! Elvis Dumbledoor went to their house, blew up the gangster's door and quickly hid behind a spikey bush. The gangsters heard a big BANG and ran out of their house. One wearing his pink, spotty socks and the others with tiny purple frilly pants and socks pulled up to their knees. Elvis picked the spikey thorns from the bush and loaded them up in his ultimate nurf gun. As the gangsters ran past him Elvis Dumbledoor shot their bottoms. "Yaaaww! Leaping lizards!!" they shouted.

He saw his magical notes on the windowsill and grabbed them with his lasso, jumped back onto his jetpack scooter and got back to London just in time to play his dumdidereedoo at the circus.